

Nanomagnetic sponges

Recent developments in nanotechnology will boost the cleaning and conserving of paintings, marble sculptures and other work of art. Chemists in Italy have devised a nanomagnetic sponge which can be loaded with solvents and that can be easily removed after the cleaning using a simple magnet. Read more on this topic. T. S. Mayor